Description Summary:

Between April 1932 and October 1933, pairs of stone markers, designed by architect Edward Donn to identify important entrances into the District of Columbia from Maryland and Virginia, were erected at different locations into the city. This pair of stone markers at Chevy Chase Circle represents two of seven surviving markers (three pairs and one single marker). The surviving pairs of markers are located at Chevy Chase Circle, at Wisconsin Avenue (at Western Avenue); and at Westmoreland Circle. The single marker is found in the median at the center of Georgia Avenue at the District line at Kalmia Road and Alaska Avenue. All of the extant markers have signs of weathering, pollution and other abuse. Most, if not all, have been knocked over at some point by motorists, or removed entirely and re-erected in the same general, but not exact same locations.

General Description:

The markers are upright, rectangular-shaped, dolmen-like stones constructed of Aquia Creek sandstone. Although the stones originally rose approximately five feet in height, they are now of varying heights depending on whether and how many times they have been knocked over and broken by erratic motorists and re-erected on their broken bases. The markers feature fluted shafts with fluting on-center running vertically the full length of the shaft, and horizontally along the edges, forming a defined edge or border.

On the markers located at the Maryland-District line, the seal of Maryland (the shield of the Calvert Coat of Arms) is located on one side towards the upper part of the stone shaft, with "Maryland" incised in uppercase lettering below the seal. On the opposing side and also at the upper part of the shaft, is a cartouche carving representing the District of Columbia and the commemoration of George Washington. "District of Columbia" is incised in uppercase lettering below the cartouche. The District of Columbia cartouche features a bas-relief depicting George Washington standing upon a pedestal with Lady Justice on the ground next to the pedestal holding a laurel wreath at its front. George Washington is flanked in the background by the dome of the Capitol building and a rising sun. In the foreground, an eagle is perched upon a garland emanating from a central laurel wreath.

The Virginia markers (no longer extant) had a seal of Virginia on one side and the commemorative seal of Washington on the other side.

An inscribed dedication "Erected by the Garden Club of America 1932" was meant to appear on one of the undecorated sides at the lower part of the marker. Not all of the markers retain this dedication. Similarly, a metal fence comprised of four metal bollards with chains linked between them, originally surrounded the markers. Today, only two of the markers retain these chain fences. Finally, the markers were originally set within planting schemes designed by the Maryland and Virginia Garden Clubs, respectively. Today, the markers on Georgia Avenue and Chevy Chase Circle are set within (recently) planted beds.

Chevy Chase Circle Markers

The Chevy Chase Circle markers are located well within the inside circumference of the circle and on-line with Western Avenue. The markers are sited in a grassy median between the benches and stone paving that encircle the centrally placed Newlands Fountain and the azalea plantings forming a perimeter to the fountain. The Chevy Chase Circle markers are set so that one has the Maryland seal on the south-facing side and the District seal on the north-facing side, while the other has the Maryland seal on the north-facing side and the District seal on the south-facing side of the marker.

Although the western marker appears to stand at its original five-foot height, the GCA dedication panel is not visible. It may not exist, or it may be buried below grade. The fluting at the bottom of the shaft is heavily worn and the top of the shaft has a large crack around it where a broken piece was re-attached to the larger shaft.

The eastern marker is the upper-half remnant of the original marker, set upon a concrete base, raising the marker to its full original height. This marker was renovated by Cathedral Stoneworks and re-erected by the Friends of Chevy Chase Circle in 2002. Although the fluting on the shaft is worn and chipped, the south-facing Maryland cartouche is in good condition and remains distinct. The District cartouche is much more worn with even the bas reliefs of George Washington and Lady Liberty completely worn down.

Summary Statement of Significance:

The Garden Club of America markers are stone markers that were erected to mark important entrances to the District of Columbia from Maryland and Virginia in 1932 and 1933. Originally planned to be dedicated as part of the 1932 George Washington Bicentennial celebration, the markers were constructed both concurrently with the series of events celebrating the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth and following the celebration. The markers were designed by local Washington, D.C. architect Edward Donn for the Garden Club of America which sponsored their erection in collaboration with the National Capital Parks and Planning Commission and under the review of the Commission of Fine Arts. Of the original six pairs of markers identified as having been constructed, three pairs and a single marker survive in various degrees of preservation.

The markers are significant both as surviving objects associated with the important George Washington Bicentennial Celebration, a national celebration commemorating the contributions made by the "first true American," and as landscape objects marking the District-Maryland and District-Virginia line at notable entry points into the city. The ornamentation of the stone markers (i.e the depiction of George Washington) is emblematic of the efforts of the era to arouse nationalistic sympathies and, as such, provides an excellent artistic expression of the time.

The markers are significant under Criterion C and Criterion Consideration F with Art and Landscape Architecture as the Areas of Significance. The Period of Significance for the markers extends from 1932 to 1933, when the first and last of the markers are known to have been dedicated.

Resource History and Historic Context:

Chevy Chase Circle Markers

The first pair of entry markers was erected on April 24, 1932 on the Virginia side of Key Bridge. Over a year later, in October 1933, the pair of entry markers was dedicated at Chevy Chase Circle, along with the Newlands Memorial Fountain. According to the Evening Star, the Chevy Chase markers were the "sixth to be placed by the Garden Club of America at important gateways to the city." The article notes that the other five pairs of markers were placed at the 16th Street entrance, at Wisconsin Avenue, at Georgia and Alaska avenues, and on the Virginia side of "both the Highway and Key Bridges."

Like the entrance markers, the Chevy Chase Circle Fountain was designed by Edward W. Donn, architect. The fountain was dedicated to Francis Newlands, a Senator from Nevada and founder of the suburb of Chevy Chase, and donated in his memory by his “family, friends and admirers.” Although much greater press was given to the fountain itself at the time of its dedication, appreciation was also expressed for the entry markers, “placed by the Garden Club of America” and for the shrubbery “provided by the Maryland garden clubs.”<sup>1</sup>

Over the years, one of the two markers at Chevy Chase Circle disappeared while the other had been relocated to a median strip on the District side of Connecticut Avenue. In the year 2000, after a motorist knocked the marker down, the National Park Service removed this remaining marker, placing it in storage in a Park shed in Rock Creek Park. Shortly thereafter, local residents began a campaign to get the Circle’s marker back, and in so doing also learned of the whereabouts of the missing marker. Local residents encouraged the National Park Service to retrieve the marker from private hands, a task that was eventually accomplished.<sup>2</sup>

In 2002, the Friends of Chevy Chase Circle hired Constantine L. Serferlis and his son, Andy, sculptors, to restore both the lost marker and the broken marker and reinstall them in their original locations inside Chevy Chase Circle. The sculptors re-attached a broken piece of the lost marker to the larger stone shaft and restored the D.C. seal, using an “appropriate” material. For the broken marker, they built a new base using Pennsylvania limestone upon which they then erected the surviving Aquia Creek marker, connecting it to the new base by a one-foot brass pin. The markers were re-erected in the Circle in September of 2003. They were placed to either side of the fountain on the east and west and in line with Western Avenue.
